Inventor Simulation is limited to linear static stress simulations, which I don't think will provide useful results for this type of simulation. At the root of the ... 'cache/h2m_cont.c' in the code I used to introduce the CTF sequences was some class of CTF sequences. (They are described in my CTF book, see .) In that class, I created a method to read data from the database and to read data from the device. I implemented this method because I wanted to get the data that was entered into this device and then stored in the database through some method that I also created. Of course,
