Other sources include the 4Team sharing service (same developer as this app), FTP server, network, external disk or USB flash drive. More should be expected in future updates since the developer is currently working on other sources to implement, such as Google Keep, Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter. Once the setup wizard is over, you return to the main window and gain access to the content in your email accounts. Additional settings can be configured if necessary. For instance, you can change the sync direction (send or receive items to or from Outlook only), schedule sync jobs to run automatically (frequently, daily, weekly) and configure filters when it comes to syncing private items and new folders, as well as removing groups or folders from Outlook if they are also deleted from somewhere else. Schedule sync tasks and run backups Backups are performed automatically when 20 changes are detected within each account. However, you can edit the number of items for this trigger, set a backup folder that's different from the default option, or disable backups altogether. Folders can be restored from these backups, though.
