MINERVA-REPAK. Prognostic significance of multigene tests for colorectal cancer. The prognostic significance of testing for tumor molecular markers has not been well established for colorectal cancer. We evaluated the prognostic significance of testing for four genes commonly associated with colorectal cancer. Tumor mRNA levels of four genes (betacatenin, K-ras, HER-2/neu, and c-myc) were determined in 105 colorectal cancer patients by quantitative reverse transcription-polymerase chain reaction analysis using the LightCycler instrument. Patients were categorized into four groups according to the relative mRNA level of each gene. Overall survival was estimated using the Kaplan-Meier method. Median follow-up was 33 months. The following gene mRNA levels showed statistically
