Cassandra-11 is a turn based strategy game that sets you in the role of a captain of the attack cruiser USS Alpha-2. Your battle is against an extremely powerful enemy carrier fleet. You are one of only three vessels that have a chance of surviving and winning the engagement. Will you be victorious? The game takes place on a map divided in separate sectors. Each sector is large enough for you to enter using a warp gate. At the center of each sector is the Carrier's Core, the primary objective of each mission. At the start of each mission, you are assigned an action card. Play the card and get a series of combat events that you must manage. The cards will evolve depending on the level of the enemy fleet and the results of your previous actions. Players use a move card (stock pointer) to move around the map and attack the enemy fleet. There are different mission cards that can be played at different parts of the battle. When an event on the map occurs, players move their ships to the sector where the event is taking place and engage the enemy fleet. If the event is not resolved, further events occur until a resolution is made. After the battle is over, you can spend points of the remaining Action card on weapons and other upgrades. Key Features: - Dynamic fleet action and ship movement: Your fleet moves with a simulated wind of a real battle. - Fully interactive 2D environment: Jump into the game world and control your ships as you see fit. - Evolving battle: Each mission is different. Every second matters and will alter the future of the battle as it unfolds. - Role Play Simulation: Experience the thrill of a space combat simulator while playing the role of the captain of a fleet in the sky. - Atmospheric Music: Improve the mood with music that evokes the feeling of being in space. - Realistic Ship Control: Experience ship movement like never before. - 3D Ship Models: See your ships move in the 3D cockpit. ### What's new:

- What could this multi-million dollar satellite made by international investors do if put in orbit? Could it put an end to conflict in Nigeria? NOBUNAGA: The NEO 440 satellite is 100% Nigerian made. Like those of the earlier stages, it is a state-of-the-art communications satellite that is going to keep Nigerians connected with the world. NOBUNAGA: If Nigeria does not make her mark, then the world will not need any more musical opportunities. She must now do so because people should know that Nigeria is capable of providing for her people. NOBUNAGA: This is a satellite made in Nigeria and paid for by Nigerian Exporters to the World. At this time of war, where human beings fight it out to the death for different beliefs and political systems, it is imperative that we take a leaf from the book of Nigeria. This satellite will help fight intra-family and religious violence in Nigeria. It will be more of a triumph if Nigeria has the first Satellite in the entire Sub-Saharan Africa region. Such a satellite should go a long way to help bring about 'good governance' in Nigeria's bleakest of tragedies at times of political unrest. NOBUNAGA: Oko Awolowo, the real pioneer of the movement for Kwara state's independence, called on the self-reliant hard-working boys and girls of Kwara state to develop their land, and take up farming as well as raising cattle and poultry at the airport. Awolowo affirmed that the best way to initiate farming in a community is to supply them with seedlings. He noted that government should lend them the seedlings either at a higher interest rate than that charged for loans from international banks. NOBUNAGA: My father, Dr. Franklin Bwako Nobunaga, was a paragon of ethics; a truthful man and a great philanthropist. He was also a great admirer of the late Kwara State constitution which was subsequently signed by our father-in-law, the then governor of Kwara State. NOBUNAGA: With the deployment of this satellite, the ex-governor of Kwara State will take the next step in drawing the boundaries of his state. This is because the GPS received by the satellite allows more accurate delivery of social services. NOBUNAGA: The former president of Nigeria, Mallam Umar Yar'Adua, who sough to lead the country in 1979, was a
