The presence of a severely impaired atrial contraction activity in patients with congestive heart failure (CHF) has been related to an abnormal ventricular filling (vascular congestion) and hemodynamic abnormalities, such as low left ventricular ejection fraction (LVEF) and higher pulmonary capillary wedge pressure (PCWP). As a consequence, an increase in cardiac output (CO) has been recommended. In CHF, there is a prolonged ventricular refractory period, induced by diminished atrial contractility, resulting in a diminished atrial and, consequently, ventricular
