Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi announced Friday that the House will pursue an impeachment inquiry on President Trump. Mr. Trump has long maintained the impeachment process violates his Fifth Amendment rights, citing the fact there's no due process. However, this morning on "Fox & Friends," former Attorney General and Trump's pick for Justice Department Bob Mueller revealed that a transcript of Mr. Trump's 2016 call with the Ukrainian President was used to initiate the impeachment inquiry.

"According to the Mueller report, there is a statement, transcript that the president made on July 25th, 2019 to the foreign minister of Ukraine," Mr. Mueller said. "It details the president's description and invitation to the foreign minister of Ukraine. The foreign minister subsequently was in a position to talk about his country's interest in the investigations regarding former Vice President, and possibly Mr. Trump, and he was in a position to get -- ask for an investigation to take place regarding former Vice President, and possibly Mr. Trump, in the United States. That was a statement the president made on July 25th, 2019." After today's discussion, President Trump responded saying that, "Bob Mueller's testimony proves without a doubt that President Obama, Hillary Clinton, the Democrats and their giant lawyers were acting illegally in my campaign." "Nothing was done until I won," Mr. Trump said. "Crooked Hillary Clinton also played her heart out. She now blames everyone but herself! Robert Mueller's testimony proves she was going to win anyways. The only way out for her!," he added. .@POTUS on Special Counsel Robert Mueller testifying: "Very important. According to a report in the Guardian (UK), the Australian activist was in prison there at the end of last year, but had been allowed to remain in the country since August. Assange also faces extradition to Sweden to face charges of rape and molestation. The WikiLeaks founder has never been charged with a crime in any country, and has been promised an extradition hearing. "Assange and Wikileaks have never been charged with any crime anywhere. He has not been charged with a crime in the UK and will not be charged with a crime in the UK," Assange's spokesperson has stated. While Assange has been in hiding in the embassy's one-bedroom "accommodation" during the wait for his extradition hearing, his supporters have visited every day. The Guardian reports that a court on Friday gave him permission to leave the building. Assange himself was not present.

According to the Guardian, Assange's lawyer in Sweden, Bjork Lindeberg, walked away from the embassy after allegedly being harassed by its security staff, who seemed to have been following him.

However, his spokesman insists that he can't leave until the court's decision on extradition has been made. The Justice Department in the UK has said that it has "no plans" to extradite Assange. WikiLeaks has denied that the U.S. government has requested his extradition. Now that Assange has been freed, the question becomes whether or not his supporters will allow him to leave the embassy.Q:
