In general, a reaction furnace is a device for performing thermal chemical reactions by controlling the reaction temperature and reaction time. The reaction furnace includes a reactor having a reaction chamber (reaction space) where a reaction occurs, a heat exchange path surrounding the reactor, and a means (exhaust means) for exhausting gas generated from the reaction chamber. When reaction raw materials, such as an iron oxide, are reacted in the reaction chamber, exhaust means may perform vacuum exhausting by using an exhaust device having a vacuum pump, or may perform exhaust means by using a manual exhaust device. When using the exhaust means, exhaust time (period of time until the reaction raw materials are completely exhausted from the reaction chamber) is controlled by controlling a rotational speed of a fan (fan speed) or a exhaust amount (number of rotations of the fan) of the exhaust means. Bears lose Allen, Dobbins for at least 8 weeks, Tannehill for indefinite period The Bears announced Saturday that wide receivers Alshon Jeffery and Kevin White both will undergo surgeries to repair injuries sustained in the Oct. 4 season opener against the Vikings. Jeffery and White, who are listed as week-to-week, were injured in the same game and started practicing a couple of days after their teammates did. White was in for five snaps and caught a 17-yard pass from Mitchell Trubisky, but the surgery will keep him out a minimum of eight weeks. The Bears also announced that linebacker Sam Tevi will miss the remainder of the season with a broken collarbone suffered against the Vikings, and running back Jordan Howard will miss the remainder of the season with a sprained knee sustained against the Vikings. After losing Jeffery and White for a minimum of eight weeks, the Bears needed a starter at wide receiver. “We’ve got a lot of guys on our team that we have to get ready to fill in. We have to play better, and we have to play more cohesive offensively,” coach

Matt Nagy said. “We’re going to have to do a better job of getting guys ready to play in different situations, guys who have a little bit more experience. It’s going to take time, and I’m not sure how much time, honestly. We’ll just have to wait and see.” Quarterback Mitchell Trubisky was sacked three times in the 17-10 loss to

This year I won't be running the big Continental Divide Trail (CDT) thru-hike this summer but I will be going for a shorter thru-hike beginning in mid-June. My current plan is to hike to Denali and then back to Fairbanks by mid-July. Any recommendations on where to stay along the route (town or campsite) or specific areas of interest? IMPORTANT: If you cannot log-in, please reset your password using our new 6 character format through THIS LINK and click Forgot Password. Comment Your best bet for a definite hotel in the Denali area is to take the Inside Passage route. Once you pick up a newspaper at the cruise ship landing, you'll start to see a lot of ads for basic cruise ship offerings. Most of these cruise ships serve a route that terminates in Ketchikan, and that city is a good point to pick up accommodations. Another way to pick up accommodations in Ketchikan is to check to see if the cruise ship companies have a hotel/motel promotion to coincide with the arrival of the cruise ship. They will have a flyer with a particular cabin number that is usually discounted. Then, once you get to Ketchikan, the local hostess (AKA 'cruise ship agent') will have a printed list of local accommodations. The list is usually on large pieces of paper that are displayed in the lobby. If there is no package available (usually this is a shorter time period than the cruise line promotions), the hostess will advise you to call the 'front desk' to make your reservation. Once you get to the Ketchikan area,
