partition (/recovery. img) appears to be a Linux.. and will allow you to repair it. . 4. Now boot into Recovery. Select "Wipe Cache/Recovery" Then select "Wipe Dalvik Cache/System" And Then select "reboot system now". 5. Edit: Over the years, Flashify was one of my favorite tools (along with wget) for getting files from the web. There are a number of other solution options that have been written over the last couple of years, including this own flashify_sync tool. I'm not as familiar with.jar/.patch based tools. (Use.jar or.patch files to customize your online flash drive.) I would also imagine you could make a batch file that would download files on startup. Might be a good idea to just have it download the.zip file and extract it. A FOSS tool for backing up and restoring the ROM images, it's free to use. . . .
