Tomographic phase-contrast microscopy and tomographic non-negative least squares (NNLS) reconstruction have recently been demonstrated as invaluable tools for visualizing four-dimensional flow fields of three-dimensional particles. However, these techniques are limited in terms of high spatial resolution and numerical accuracy, both of which are key to characterizing flows in microfluidic systems and other small scale imaging applications. Here we demonstrate a significantly enhanced optical imaging technique, which is free of these limitations, that we refer to as wide-field Fourier Ptychography. We show that this technique can facilitate the visualization of the three-dimensional flow fields of three-dimensional particles with high resolution and accuracy. We apply our wide-field Fourier Ptychography to visualize cell-like particles that drift and de-mix under the influence of a strong acoustical shear flow and find that our technique is capable of revealing both the local velocity vector field in the image plane and particle locations in the three-dimensional volume.Q: Create and bind a Dynamic Placement to a Entity in Unity3d I'm experimenting with Unity3d and I would like to create a prefab of an entity that is controlled by a character. The goal is to not have to use a rigidbody on the character to rotate the prefab. I started by making a GameObject with a box collider. Then I made an empty gameobject and added a Gameobject prefab as child of it. The next step was to make a collider attached to the empty gameobject I made and having a rigidbody component (I would like to avoid moving this component because it should be locked on the prefab when the character goes forward/backward). Then I made the prefab as children of the empty gameobject I created before. I want the pref

Sat, February 3, 2014 4:00pm The Lawrence Lawrence Free Library will host the third annual "Star Wars" book-signing and raffle fundraiser from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 3 at the Library in East Lawrence. The money raised will support the Library. The Star Wars themed fundraiser will also include appearances by the cast of the new "Star Wars" films. For more details, visit the LRL Website. There's a fire at the house of the Daleys that I used to live next to back in 1980-81. They are the owners of D&G Electric in the West Lawrence Commons. I heard firetrucks and ambulances, and also a police car, while I was outside getting ready to go to work. The fire was centered under the house on Adickes (across from the Barleyfield Cafe on Adickes). Their house is about the size of the garage next door to my house, but it's all one level and has a loft above it. If I lived next door to them, I'd definitely try to go look at what they need, or give them a e79caf774b
