Xi's return: China's military chief calls on troops to repel "second wave" of Americanism Military leaders in China want to repel a "second wave" of Americanism and the "poison of democracy" from their country, state media said Saturday in a rare call to arms from the ruling Communist Party's military chiefs that accompanied the parade of more than 3,000 tanks in the capital of Beijing. The sternly-worded call came during a three-day military parade in Beijing that featured fighter jets and combat vehicles with such hallmarks of China as sensors on the side to detect the heat and exhaust of enemy planes and figures on the side to record the temperature. But the military chiefs' visit with President Xi Jinping and Prime Minister Li Keqiang was by far the most contentious in recent memory, with the military hailing China's swift victory in 1962 over India in a clash that left more than 1,000 dead on the new border and continuing to aggressively expand foreign investment. The Chinese army's new chief, Xu Qiliang, is no friend to democracy. These military leaders want to repel the second wave of Americanism and the poison of democracy from China. Need to spend money to get some new rifles or figure out how to repel the invaders. The public sector is never going to fund this. Get big military investors to put cash into this.
